

Numismatics 1964 In Retrospect

Government Actions an Exercise in Futility

"We will not anticipate the past... our retrospection will be all to the future" would seem an apt introduction for a review of numismatics in 1964; the words were written in 1775 by Richard B. Sheridan for his play "The Rivals".

The fact Sheridan was an elegant, amiable and witty "farceur" does not alter the fact he emerged as a great English dramatist; a slight taint of personal scandal notwithstanding.

If numismatics can endure and survive the controversies, adversities and often farce-like situations to which it has been exposed, it should emerge bigger and better during the next decade — in spite of a touch of scandal, or despite the "larceny in the heart boys".

"Not to anticipate the past" contains a great message of hope for the numismatic community because it signifies a total divorce between political implications and the hobby, but most important a return to sanity — the abandonment of the profit factor as the ultimate goal in coin collecting.

The first signs of sobering thoughts in this direction have appeared recently under the guise of declining prices for volume hoarded, brilliant uncirculated coins of post-1950 vintage. It can hardly be denied the price weakness for this type of material has taken on disastrous proportions.

On balance, 1964 witnessed an unparalleled growth of the coin collecting hobby. Unfortunately, this achievement is largely measurable in terms of dollars and cents — a terrible indicator to gauge intellectual efforts. On the heartening side, however, is a clear indication of a renaissance as demonstrated by the vast expansion of numismatic research and writing currently conducted.

The year 1965 could well become a vintage date for new and important contributions to numismatic literature — a field relatively neglected hitherto, at least in popular expression.

Historically, 1964 will emerge as perhaps the most significant year in numismatics; in addition, its effects are bound to leave a lasting impression on the entire future of the hobby.

Not soon to be forgotten, the 1964 United States proof set antics, which resulted in temporary if not permanent discontinuation of a much-coveted coin collector's attribute, will stand out as THE administrative blunder of the decade. From every indication, discontinuation of proof sets concurrently with retention of "1964" on United States coinage constitutes a clear-cut vexation of coin collector's interests — all in vain mind you, since the most time- and silver-consuming efforts at the U. S. Mint involve the production of half dollars bearing the likeness of the late President John F. Kennedy.

It is obvious now from cumulative mintage figures, no less than 180,000,000 Kennedy half dollars will be struck in 1964. The toll in silver losses: 65 million ounces of the much-needed and critical strategic metal, relegated in this instance to the fabrication of an official keepsake.

The obvious duplication of efforts has been demonstrated, since a multitude of private firms endeavored to strike medals of the late President, not to mention the U. S. Mint itself which issues its No. 135 bronze medal bearing the likeness of John F. Kennedy engraved by Roberts and Gasparro, measuring 3 inches in diameter and selling for $3.00 when ordered directly from the Mint.

Investment implications of coin collecting remain an important factor in the hobby. Experience has demonstrated, however, that general acceptance of coins as a bona-fide investment vehicle is remote. Legal acceptance is henceforth precluded because of the often unsavory practices which have sporadically prevailed in this field; thusfar, no individual States have included coins on their list of bona-fide investment instruments and as such no legal precedent has been set.

The Securities and Exchange Commission, now temporarily devoid of its "crusading" motivations by a series of new Presidential appointments, has quietly dropped the matter of broker registrations applicable to coin dealers. Obviously, President Johnson's pledge "not to seek new areas of regulation" has worked wonders here.

Prospective issuance of 45 million silver dollars — the ultimate exercise in futility — seems to be petering out; rumors that the Western adventure is being postponed circulate intensively; "well-informed" sources now consider the issuance of newly minted silver cartwheels problematic and definitely to be postponed till after new silver legislation is enacted. If legislation favoring the striking of 45,000,000 silver dollars was a "payoff" to Western legislators in exchange for their support of certain crucial pieces of legislation, as cynics have murmured, then the issuance of silver dollars is definitely compromised. The administration can furthermore make a strong case against the move, although enacted by law, by presenting evidence that the newly minted silver dollars will not alleviate the coin shortage but rather contribute to renewed profiteering. The toll in silver for this venture: 35 million ounces.

Definitely on the increase: interest in foreign proof coins, sets, specimen sets and new issues. This area of numismatics is rapidly expanding and is gaining new adepts every day. The built-in and rather stern warning, however: should the current boom in foreign coins carry the prices in this market to unrealistic heights, the operators might well "kill the goose with the golden eggs" — to use an old cliché applied to a new abuse.

On the subject of silver legislation itself, expected are a series of bills urging reduction of silver content in U. S. coinage to 800 fine (a proposal now obsolete due to the critical proportions of the silver crisis), other bills advocating reduction to 500 if not 333 fineness. Another bill calls for the doubling of the present value of silver coins (the Groseclose proposal).

Finally, last month came the Clain-Stefanelli proposal: complete elimination of silver in United States coinage and replacement by nickel. This issue, by far the most inflammatory, has a strange flavor of U. S. Treasury patronage and will find its denouement when Congress reconvenes.

Mr. Strauss, one of the leading authorities on silver, expressed a strong difference of opinion with Dr. Clain-Stefanelli, Curator of Numismatics of the Smithsonian Institute, over the question of silver content in U. S. coinage.

Dr. Clain-Stefanelli has advocated the total elimination of silver from our coins because of shrinking silver supplies in the face of rising consumption. Mr. Strauss, vice president of Ameri-

Pace Year End Market Review

Silver Issues Are The Year's Leaders

By Russell Brown

FOLLOWING a trend already well in evidence by mid year, the second half of 1964 saw a continued heavy traffic in quarters, half dollars and dollars. Only the Roosevelt dime was omitted from the general investor quest for silver issues. And during the past two months while the market has been going through a period of readjustment, most of the silver issues with the exception of the Morgan series have held up under fire and seemed determined not to give ground, pricewise.

Before discussing in general terms just what has occurred in the coin market during the past year, it might be wise to go through the calendar and examine the performance of each series. Various actions both by participants in the market and by the government have greatly influenced the coin market and by looking first at the results, we can possibly learn what to expect from future activity.

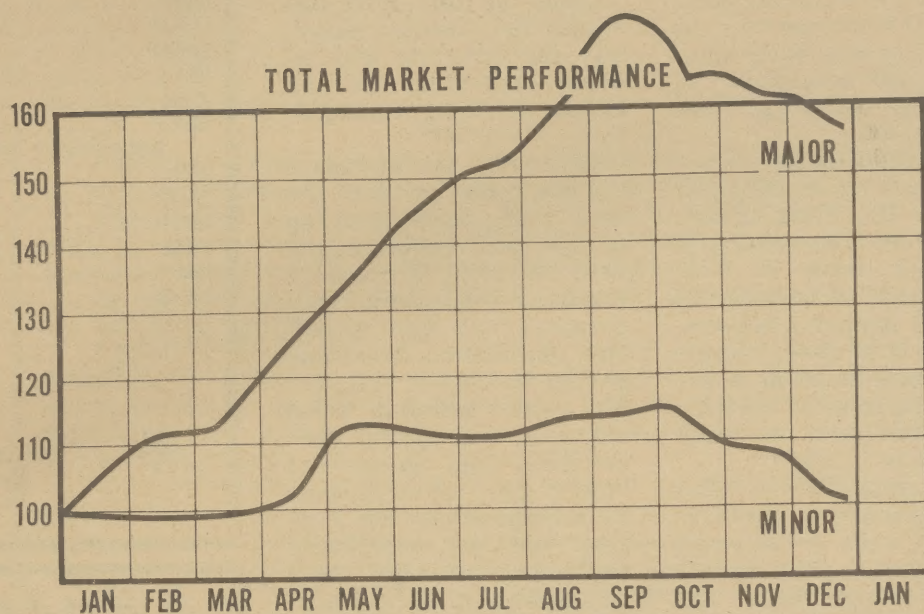

January saw the last gains of a minor rise in the Roosevelt Dime and small increases in the Washington quarter and the Peace dollar. Mid January witnessed the end of the dime and quarter increase and a resumption of increases in the Franklin half which did not cease until late May. Proof sets were level after their November rise as were Jefferson nickels and Morgan dollars. Lincoln cents, after a tremendous promotion during the final three months of 1963 began to sag and remained on more or less of a level plateau throughout the spring and summer of 1964.

February brought declines to the dime and the quarter and continued small decreases by the cent. Half dollars leveled slightly but did not decline. Morgan dollars peaked out but after a short decline rallied and began to increase once again.

March saw the big push by the Franklin half dollar. The entire market took a back seat for a month while the series doubled in value. Jefferson nickels began to show slight unrest and buying activity appeared in spurts. Morgan dollars were steady while the Peace series staged a minor advance.

April was a repetition of October for the nickels. In a period of three weeks the Jefferson series rose almost twenty per cent in value and forecasters began to wonder if other series might follow suit. Sure enough the Roosevelt dimes took off two weeks after the Jeffs and rose about the same percentage. Meanwhile, half dollars continued to make new yearly highs with each passing week and the Lincoln cent steadied and rose for the first time in four months. During the last week of April the Washington quarter began a run that while not hard and fast, was of long duration, lasting till early October.

May witnessed a continuation of

The above graph is an index showing market performance during the year 1964. Each series is weighted equally. Cents, nickels and dimes are represented by the line labelled MINOR and quarters, half dollars, Morgan dollars, Peace dollars and proof sets are represented by the line labelled MAJOR. It can easily be seen that 1964 was the year of major coinage and that the net result of small denomination investment during the year has been quite unrewarding.

firming in the Lincolns, advances in dimes and general price inactivity in nickels, halves and proof sets. During the last weeks of May, the silver dollar got its last big play and rose a flat twenty per cent across the board. Most of the dollar action centered around the medium priced Morgans though enormous quantities of the cheap dates in bag lots found their way into investors' storerooms.

In June, the silver dollar activity continued unabated. All other denominations were in decline or generally inactive. Proof sets began to see signs of life though there was very small volume in the initial stages of the proof run which was soon to follow.

July brought us the two weeks which will be known to future generations of numismatists as the proof set madness. In an overnight action, what had started out to be a small scale "run" by several dealers gained momentum with the announcement of the discontinuation of set manufacture and snowballed into the most rapid price rise any series had yet seen. Prices on some sets doubled overnight and even the most unsophisticated of coin market speculators made handsome profits if they entered the melee during the first week. The proof set boom was so violent that it completely killed the advance of the Morgan and Peace dollars and nipped in the bud a renewal of advance by the Franklin half.

The month of August was notable on three counts. First and foremost, dealers discovered the Peace dollar issues and began a promotion which was to go into September and see a fifty per cent rise in the value of the series. Second, the Jefferson nickel started another advance and, hopefully, investors planned on the Jeff staging another rise similar to April. But the advance was short lived and only amounted to a net six per cent gain. Third, the proof set promotion ran out of steam and left thousands of late buying investors in at the top of the market. The ensuing decline continues to the present day.

September saw a continuance of the Peace dollar promotion. Numerous issues rose fifteen per cent or more as the price on a complete set crossed the thousand dollar mark. Inability to obtain the 1934-S in true uncirculated had much to do with the increase in set value. Suddenly, in the middle of the month, no one would touch the Peace set with a ten foot pole. Dealers decided that the series was overpriced and quit buying. As a result, prices tumbled to their late August levels and have stayed there ever since with only minor variations.

October was a slow month for the market and the smart money began to liquidate. There were many who saw the doldrums as only a temporary thing but with cents and nickels both scoring major losses and all other series following suit to some extent, it took real optimism to maintain a bullish attitude.

November nurtured trends begun in October but to a greater degree. A major market selloff was initiated that has continued to the present time. Only a small recovery by Peace dollars showed a spark of prosperity in an otherwise overbought market. Each denomination in turn took a beating, though the worse were borne by cents and nickels.

December has been thus far a time of wait and watch. Small selective buying is definitely taking place and prices could very well be at their lows. But we have yet to see evidence that the investor is coming back into the market. In fact, it appeared that many investors were ready to take their profits simultaneously in late October and found no buyers to give them their expected gains. These investors, unless they were lucky, have spent the last two months watching their paper profits disappear and it will take a major recovery by the market in 1965 to bring them back in.

As in the stock market, there are outside influences which definitely affect issue prices. Strangely enough, happenings such as a President's death, while throwing the stock market into chaos have little influence on coin market activities. But just let the government announce that it is discontinuing proof sets and the prices literally go berserk. This is one of can Smelting & Refining Company, says silver supplies on hand or in sight are sufficient to support coinage with intrinsic value, even if at a lower rate than the present 90 per cent silver content. Some observers maintain that with the present rate of Treasury silver drain complete exhaustion will be reached within three years unless silver content of coins is reduced.

Mr. Strauss does not agree with the Stefanelli proposal of replacing silver with nickel. He contends that contrary to Dr. Stefanelli's assumption that little can be done to increase silver production, increases of approximately 15 per cent over present production are now scheduled for the next four years. Mr. Strauss further pointed out the fallacy in arguing that the price of silver would necessarily rise to the monetary value in debased rather than totally base coinage. He pointed out that the monetary price of silver of $1.29 an ounce was far in excess of the market price of silver until 1962.

Many of the countries which are minting nickel coins are in addition also issuing silver coinage for higher value coins, because of the psychological benefits intrinsic value coinage gives to the entire currency. France and Italy are outstanding examples of this policy for instance.

Mr. Strauss also pointed out that nickel was so short in supply during World War II because of military requirements that the Treasury had to eliminate the 25 per cent nickel content in the five-cent pieces.

The possibility of a nickel alloy with sufficient Numismatics 1964—Gal 3 electrical conductivity to accommodate current coin-operated machines was not believed to be a likely solution by the technicians of American Smelting and Refining Co.

The numismatic year concluded on a brilliant note by Dr. Franz Pick's seminar on silver and gold held last week in New York and attended by some 60 bankers, brokers, officials and speculators.

All facts point at a silver crisis, this is Dr. Pick's firm belief and no easy solution is in sight.

A cupronickel United States coinage is unrealistic and risks to damage seriously a rapidly fading dollar prestige here and abroad according to Dr. Pick, not to mention that the usage of cupronickel would be an open invitation to counterfeiting, he added.

In addition, Dr. Pick expressed the firm conviction a hike in the official prices of gold and silver (respectively $35 and $1.293 an ounce) appears inevitable. The specter of "nationalization" of silver remains omnipresent, it would entail the suspension of open market silver trading and place silver in a position equivalent to gold; the latter's ownership is now prohibited for U. S. citizens.

The year 1964 has engendered terrible complexities which directly affect numismatics; causes and effects will vary greatly in consequences for the hobby and are not to be underrated.

Most of all, 1964 has shown the absolute necessity for complete and in-depth reporting of all events affecting numismatics.

Obviously the newspapers and other media of the coin trade have lived up to the new requirements with different degrees of emphasis and mostly in accordance with their respective consciences. The same cannot be said of the general and national press which in this fateful year of 1964 has given the "black eye" of a lifetime to numismatics for reasons not yet completely explained, although their schemes smell of "political pressures".

"The newspapers! Sir, they are the most villainous, licentious, abominable, infernal — Not that I ever read them! No, I make it a rule never to look into a newspaper." — Having introduced the Numismatic 1964 Review with Sheridan, it is only equitable it be concluded by same from his immortal "The Critic" performed in 1779 at the old Drury Lane

FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW!

Regarding the 1964 Pointed and Blunt tail 9 Dimes

The Pointed tail 9 is rare, the Blunt tail 9 is common, this is our opinion from a lengthy detailed research. There are less than 2,000,000 Pointed tail 9 1964-P dimes, with over 300,000,000 Blunt tail 9's with the balance of this year and next year this could mean up to 1,000,000,000 yes, one billion, Blunt tail 9 dimes of 1964-P will be available. When you consider the ratio 2,000,000 and 1,000,000,000 you have a rare item.

The 1964-D Pointed tail 9 isn't as rare but only some 47,000,000 are out in comparison to up to 2,000,000,000, yes two billion Blunt tail 9's. The U.S. Mint is out to flood the market! And they will. But the more they make the more rare the Pointed tail 9 dime will be!

The pattern is the same as the 1960 small date cents. They were struck the early part of the year, thereafter all large dates; so be it hereafter all Blunt tail 9 dimes.

The 1964 Proof sets have the same variety, again the Pointed tail 9 is in a strict minority, only 35,000 similar to the 1960 small date proof set mintage. Over 3,000,000 1964 proof sets will be made, thus 2,965,000 will be of the Blunt type!

We have a limited supply of this promising dime variety.

Retired Silver Certificates Add Pressure on Gold

Expansion of Fed Notes Key to Problem

By Christian F. Verbeke

THE rapid expansion of Federal Reserve notes, some $2.5 billion during the last year, is contributing to a declining gold reserve ratio legally set at 25 percent. Retirement of silver certificates and crash silver bullion redemptions cause accelerated issuance of Federal Reserve Notes, which results in added pressures on the gold reserve ratio.

This is First City National Bank's consensus of opinion in its December monthly economic letter. A dwindling Gold reserve ratio and related monetary matters are analyzed in First National's article entitled "The Gold Reserve Requirement Revisited" which follows.

At the present rate of monetary expansion, and even if the United States were not to sustain any further gold losses, the ratio of gold to the combined Federal Reserve note and deposit liabilities appears likely to fall to the required legal minimum in something like two to three years. On November 25, the ratio stood at 28.6 per cent, as against the legal minimum of 25 percent. A year ago, it worked out to 30.6 per cent. In early 1958 when the U. S. Treasury gold stock was at its highest level of the past decade, the ratio was at 47.4 per cent.

Today, the Federal Reserve gold ratio is closer to the legal limit than at any time since 1945 when Congress, desiring to continue an easy money policy to help finance the war, lowered the reserve requirement to 25 per cent from 40 per cent on Federal Reserve notes and from 35 per cent on deposits at Federal Reserve Banks.

Until about two years ago, the main factor in the gradual fall of the gold reserve ratio had been the decline in the U. S. gold stock, itself the consequence of the large deficits in the U. S. balance of payments and the resultant purchases of gold by foreign governments from the U. S. Treasury. In 1963, however, the U. S. Treasury gold stock fell by only $465 million, the smallest loss since the end of 1957; so far this year the loss amounts to $125 million. The continued decline in the ratio of gold to Federal Reserve liabilities is, therefore, attributable largely to an accelerated expansion in Federal Reserve notes, which reflects in part the issuance of $1 notes to replace silver certificates. Over the past year, Federal Reserve notes have expanded by about $2.5 billion. At the same time, deposits in Federal Reserve Banks — which consist mainly of the reserves of commercial banks — have increased by about $500 million.

In the first ten months of 1964, the money supply, computed on

Conclusions

Increased silver redemption will continue to add pressure on an already protracted gold reserve ratio now down 28.6 percent.

Paradoxical as it may seem, pressures on the gold reserve ratio are at present not worsened by our international monetary position, but rather by a domestic silver crisis.

In spite of official reassurances, signs of mounting inflation are becoming apparent.

Officially denied but of increasing reality are the long-term prospects for repeal of gold reserve requirements. The latter move would of course be highly controversial and represents a typical Keynesian view which would value the dollar in terms of faith in, and integrity of, the U. S. Government.

Gold reserve repeal would be determined by the attitudes of leading International Monetary Fund members presently committed to: "Gold as the Ultimate International Reserve Asset".

the basis of currency outside banks and adjusted commercial bank demand deposits, rose at an annual rate of 4.2 per cent; last year's rise was 3.8 per cent. In only one of the previous ten years — 1958, a year of revival from recession — was there a comparable rate of increase.

This year's growth in money supply has followed three years of rising business with reasonable stability of prices and costs. The speed-up in monetary expansion, signs of cramped capacity in some industries, increases in prices of many industrial materials and the new labor contracts in the auto industry may well portend another bout of inflationary strains. If so, the pace of monetary expansion will, it must be hoped, slow down. Nevertheless, the leeway available under existing gold legislation would be rather narrow, even if the U. S. Treasury gold stock did not decline further.

U. S. Gold Position Today

Of the U. S. Treasury gold stock of $15.4 billion on November 25, $13.2 billion was required as cover for Federal Reserve note and deposit liabilities and about $300 million was held as backing against U. S. notes and in the Treasurer's account. The excess — sometimes referred to also as "free" gold — stood at $1.9 billion, compared with $2.8 billion a year ago. In early 1958, excess gold stood at $10.5 billion. The chart shows the broad changes in Federal Reserve note and deposit liabilities and the U. S. gold stock over the past thirty years.

The much smaller decline in the U. S. gold stock so far this year reflects to some degree the enlarged gold supplies from Russia, which reached the London gold pool in 1963 and again last spring, and gold purchases from Italy and other nations that experienced balance-of-payments difficulties; these purchases offset U. S. gold sales to France, Germany and a few other Continental European countries. The relative stability in the U. S. gold stock also reflects U. S. drawings on the International Monetary Fund and sales of special medium-term U. S. Treasury securities to foreign governments and central banks, often denominated in buyers' currencies; these tend to reduce official foreign holdings of short-term dollars eligible for conversion into gold.

As 1964 is shaping up, the U. S. balance-of-payments deficit — as conventionally defined — may be something like $2-2.5 billion, compared with 3.3 billion in 1963. The bulk of dollars that have accrued to foreign nations this year has been added to private rather than official holdings. Although these privately held dollars might be sold to central banks, the fact is that, as of now, they are working balances and reserve funds which private persons and corporations find to their advantage to keep in our money market.

Some of the short-term dollar balances held by foreign governments and central banks, totaling somewhat over $12 billion, obviously might be converted into gold even after the U. S. payments deficit has been brought under better control. Furthermore, proposals are now being studied to increase subscriptions next year to the International Monetary Fund; 25 per cent of these are to be paid in gold. While it has been suggested that consideration be given to "minimizing" the impact of gold payments to the IMF, increased subscriptions might ultimately involve some transfers of gold from the U. S. stock, as happened the last time in 1959. Should the United States experience further gold losses, these would accelerate the rate at which the gold reserve ratio approaches the legal minimum.

What To Do

Two or three years ago, there was considerable discussion about the gold reserve requirement. Much of this discussion was, however, concerned with the continuing ability of the United States to convert into gold, dollars held by foreign governments and central banks. There was, of course, awareness that a decline in the gold stock would give rise to uncertainties about the Federal Reserve's ability to pursue monetary policies otherwise regarded as appropriate and desirable; but the main concern was with the defense of the dollar.

Today, the defense of the dollar continues to be essential. But in view of the expansion in money supplies — and with the narrowing elbowroom provided by the gold that is not required as cover for currency — the time is approaching when the gold reserve requirement will have to be reconsidered on domestic grounds also.

There is the paradox that a reserve requirement to back domestic currency makes reserves unavailable for the intended purpose of settling international balances. Less than one half of the central banks in the world have legal reserve requirements against their note and deposit liabilities. Asides from the United States, there are only three countries where the statutory reserves must be held exclusively in gold — Belgium, the Republic of South Africa and Switzerland. In many countries, these requirements were repealed or suspended at the outbreak of World War II. A number of central banks established since the war, including the German Bundesbank, have no such requirements.

Another relevant point is that since the dollar is no longer convertible into gold except in transactions with foreign governments and central banks, the need for a specific domestic cover is outdated.

Arguments like these are persuasive. At the same time, it is also true that over the past few years the gold reserve requirement has been like a "red light" — a warning to watch our gold stock, hold inflation in check and keep spending abroad to what we can afford. What is in question, therefore, is how to devise an effective "braking system" to replace the gold reserve requirement. W. Randolph Burgess once wrote of the need for a statistical equivalent for gold. Perhaps we can get it if people become sensitive to erosion of the purchasing power of the dollar and insist on fiscal and wage discipline.

If we yield to the very practical pressure to repeal the gold reserve requirement, renewed consideration also should be given to removing simultaneously the 4½ per cent interest rate ceiling on long-term Government bonds. Such a measure would help the Treasury stretch out and refund the national debt and demonstrate that our financial policies are truly flexible.

Those responsible for U. S. monetary affairs have repeatedly

DUAL SYSTEM

...The Numismatic Market's First And Only Fully Automatic, Dual System Teletype Network

FULLY AUTOMATIC!

USCE's new "Dual System" is the ultimate in numismatic teletype equipment! NO waiting to get on the line. NO line contention. NO message interference. All messages are sent at maximum speed by punched tape. All you do is place your message tape in the transmitter. No need to wait at the machine . . . you can attend to other matters in the shop. Your message will be picked up by the automatic polling system which polls every station in turn, assuring every member an equal opportunity to use the lines.

DOUBLE CAPACITY!

The all-new model 28 ASR Automatic Tape Machines send and receive SIMULTANEOUSLY. That means that the United States Coin Exchange now has twice the present capacity of any other teletype network. Only the "Dual System" gives you 60 minutes per hour sending time—and 60 minutes per hour receiving time. Simultaneous sending and receiving also means that relays are not interrupted by outgoing messages. Thus messages are received by all stations at approximately the same time . . . keeping the market current even during the busiest trading hours.

NEWLY EXPANDED MARKET!

USCE offers you the largest teletype market in the numismatic field. The membership of the American Numismatic Exchange will be consolidated with USCE, bringing the number of active, trading members on the one network to OVER 300. Consider the tremendous purchasing and selling resources of this market. Your earnings as a teletype dealer are directly proportional to the quality of your teletype service . . . and the number of dealers on the network. And the USCE "Dual System" can efficiently service over 300 dealers.

MEMBERSHIPS NOW AVAILABLE!

The expanded facilities of USCE's new "Dual System" have greatly increased the number of dealers that can be serviced on the exchange. Memberships are now available in most geographical areas at $280 per month; slightly higher in Canada. For more information on how USCE's ultimate new teletype system can help you increase your business, write or call . . .

"The Critic" concluded Sheridan's pursuits as a man of letters. Let us hope that the official and journalistic buffooneries of 1964 do not conclude the bright career of NUMISMATICS.

Gold

stated that the United States intends to pay its short-term debts to other nations down to the last bar of gold if that should be necessary. The nation's gold reserve is fully committed to backing the dollar internationally at $35 an ounce. Actually, the gold is already available since present legislation permits temporary suspension, with penalties, of the gold reserve requirement in case of need. On no less than three occasions — in 1919, 1920 and on March 3, 1933, the bank-holiday period — Federal Reserve

Banks were allowed to suspend the reserve requirements for a specified number of days; none of these suspensions was renewed. Renewals of temporary suspension would, of course, be contrary to the intent of the legislation involved. Even more distasteful than the mechanism for temporary suspension of the gold reserve requirement is the thought that the United States would allow itself to get caught in a situation of this sort. It must be hoped that this will never come to pass.

Even without changing the 25 per cent reserve requirement, the amounts of gold to be held as legal cover could be reduced if the Federal Reserve Board were to cut member bank reserve requirements. Today, the reserve city banks are required to hold as reserves 16½ per cent of net demand deposits and 4 per cent of time deposits; the legal minima are 10 and 3 per cent, respectively. If the present percentages were to be reduced to these minima, the same volume of commercial bank deposits could be supported by a considerably smaller amount of reserves at Federal Reserve Banks. Even so, the present gold stock would be sufficient to cover the growth in money supplies for only a few additional years.

The Need for a Strong Gold Reserve

Reconsideration of the gold reserve requirement seems forced by circumstances. In this debate, it is most essential that we realize fully where we are heading and where we want to wind up.

Repealing the gold reserve requirement does not mean that the United States can cut loose from gold. Other leading nations do not want to demonetize gold by international agreement, giving up their official gold reserves and making gold merely a commodity traded in free markets. In the view of the finance ministers of ten leading nations set forth in a statement issued last summer, gold will continue to be "the ultimate international gold reserve asset."

Granted this, it follows that the United States — even with all its productive power to give real value to money — requires a strong gold reserve. This reserve need not be so large as to cover all dollar holdings of foreign banks, merchants and investors. The United States, as an international banker, does not need to hold cash balances equal to its liabilities. But the United States must possess a gold reserve large enough to give full assurance that the dollar will remain at all times a strong currency and command universal respect.

It is only by facing issues such as these that we can arrive at sensible and realistic policies. The need of the moment is to re-examine the gold reserve requirement in an emotion-free atmosphere without risk that apprehensions engendered by such a discussion might outweigh the benefits to be gained. It is indisputable that protection of the gold reserve should be a prime objective of U. S. Government actions and policies.

the first lessons which a beginning coin investor must learn: to observe the happenings of the world outside with an eye out for just how they will affect the coin market.

Certainly, the three most important events in which the government had its hand this year were first, the handling of the proof set situation; second, its handling of the silver situation in general and third, the decision to continue the use of 1964 as a date on 1965 coinage.

Silver Dollars still hold the limelight, and I expect even more interest in dollar collecting in 1965. Many silver dollars dating back to 1878 can still be purchased in uncirculated condition for only double face value. What other uncirculated coin can you get for such a low price?

A 1949-S dime BU, with a mintage of 13.5 million sells for 130 times its face value, or a premium of $12.90, while a BU 1879-S dollar with a mintage of only 9.1 million sells for only 2 times its face value, or a one dollar premium. Furthermore, 1949-S dimes are still found in general circulation, but where can you find a silver dollar in circulation? With the price of silver sure to go up in the near future, most silver dollars will be melted, thereby making those that remain numismatically more valuable.

No wonder the old "Cartwheel" is the best bargain in the coin market today.

1963 Luxembourg millenary crown

Only 20,000 250 Franc 1963 Silver Crowns were minted according to our representative currently on a numismatic buying trip throughout Europe. This was the first time the Brussels Mint ever produced a coin larger than 100 Francs for Luxembourg and the edition is legally terminated. No more will be struck!

We were lucky in securing directly from sources in Luxembourg a consignment of these special crowns with a unique Patina Finish protected in hard plastic cases by mint officials. These coins will forever be perfect and free from nicks and scratches, commonly referred to as "bag marks." This unusual finish imparts a spectral coloration and has been designated for only 7500 of the Millenary Crowns. Therefore, they are quite rare and already considered Collectors Items! With a face value of over $5.00, this coin is sure to be an ideal future investment. We predict that this coin will be selling for over $25.00 in less than six months.

Presently our supplies appear to be sufficient to fill most orders. But, when they are exhausted we will be required to buy these at a premium and our price will have to increase.

has had a definite effect on the market. In the case of the proof sets, the early cutoff and cutback of orders forced the prices of the 1964 sets and along with them, all other proof prices to high levels. The decision to eliminate future proof mintage has held the 1964 set at a price level which will surely decline if the government ever decides to reverse its stand. Certainly the release of the silver dollars in the spring of the year triggered, if not the start, then at least the ten fold increase of silver coin hoarding. Had the Treasury adopted a different policy it is possible that we never would have had the subsequent boom in the Morgan and Peace series. And now with its current usage of silver in enormous quantities for coins the Treasury is rapidly backing itself into a corner from which there is only one exit: debasement. There can be no doubt in anyone's mind that the price of current date rolls of silver coins is intimately tied in with the future policies of the government as to the time and rate of debasement. And each bit of action or rumor thereof in 1965 will trigger constant changes in the prices of these coins.

The decision not to use 1965 as a date on the coins

1965 B. U. CANADIAN COINAGE

Canadian coinage for 1965 promises to be the best year yet. The obverse of all coins has been changed and now portrays a more mature image of Queen Elizabeth. We have seen Canadian coinage become scarce and prices rise in the years 1963 and 1964. We suggest that you order now while our prices are low. Again we offer our Layaway Plan for easy financing.

of next year has had what must be regarded as a very small effect overall to this point in time. There were cries of fear when the act was passed that all pre 1964 coins would immediately go into hiding and this has certainly not happened nor have they materially increased in price as a result of the act. And the prices of 1964 coins have not been a great deal lower than they would have had the dating act not been passed. To judge fully the effect of date retention we will have to look into 1965 to the point in time when it is decided to start using "1965". At the present time, the best guess is that this will occur in July. At that time we will in all probability see a small increase in the price of 1964 issues. But the main effect will be felt by the 1965 issues. Though the output of a fired up mint for the final six months of 1965 will be equivalent to that of the full year 1962, there will still be those who feel that a six month output will be

Book on Silver and Coinage Situation to be Released

C. F. Verbeke

Two young economists, Charles Robinson and Charles Young, are presently completing a book which is hoped to be an objective and practical academic study of the silver and coinage situation.

It is, however, speculated that the book will express ideas or opinions coinciding with those of the Silver Users Association which advocates elimination of silver from U. S. coinage.

The book is expected to oppose cutting the silver content of coins in half, as has been suggested by Simon D. Strauss, or the Dr. Elgin Groseclose proposal of doubling the value of the present silver coins, reportedly because among other points, such suggested actions might not provide a long range solution nor do they assure an orderly transition with minimal hoarding while Congress enters into a debate about issuing new coins. It remains to be seen how the book will analyze the difficult task of converting to a completely debased coinage system without having all the existing subsidary silver coinage go into hoarding.

It seems to be very likely that Congress will be forced to change our present subsidiary coinage next year because of constantly dwindling Treasury silver stocks and rising coinage needs, this in the face of a world silver shortage. The Treasury is scheduled to send a report on silver and coins to Congress on February 1, 1965.

The book, "Nation Without Coins" is expected to be released next month. PACE will review this book immediately upon publication.

WASHINGTON — The United States Treasury reiterated that the small emblem on the lower side of the Kennedy half dollar is not the hammer and sickle of Soviet Russia.

The symbol referred to is in reality the letters "G.R.", which are the initials of the designer of the coin, Gilroy Roberts, former chief engraver of the U. S. Mint in Philadelphia, now chief executive of a "private mint" in process of organization. The marking on the coin was by many people mistaken for the Russian emblem possibly due to its small size.

The Treasury made this explanatory announcement after numerous inquiries about the mark on the coin which is at the bottom of the President's profile.

The initials of another designer, John Gasparro, are on the reverse side of the Kennedy half.

It is expected that about 200 million Kennedy halves will be minted in 1965. Almost 185 million halves have been minted this year, which is about double the amount that was planned for 1964. They are, however, not yet in free circulation because of their sentimental value. Earlier this year, dealers were selling them for 85 cents; now they can be obtained for 55 cents or 20 for $11 if not outright for face value.

Unless a decision is made next year to change the silver content of coins, dealers expect to be flooded with the J.F.K. halves in 1965.

WASHINGTON — The

U. S. Treasury has authorized the U. S. Mint to replace 1964 Proof sets which have been lost in the mails enroute to the purchaser.

This decision is a reversal of the Treasury Department's earlier stand concerning the replacement of 1964 Proof sets lost in the mails. It is, however, stressed that persons making a claim for replacement of lost 1964 Proof sets must have post office documentation of such loss.

In a letter from the superintendent's office of the United States Mint, Philadelphia, mailed to claimants, it is stated: "If you

5000 S-MINT CENTS

PLUS: 1 each 1924-D and 1931-D Cents

YES . . .

I've been hoarding a lot of S-mint cents as a speculation. My office manager has convinced me that I can't afford to tie up my money, that in fact it must keep turning. Anyway, we took about 30 bags of circulated S-mint cents and mixed them together. Every date is included in some quantity from 1941-S thru 1955-S, and a handful of cents before 1940-S are mixed in. Finally, just to make things taste good, I've added the following cents to EACH AND EVERY BAG:

1 1924-D
1 1926-S
1 1931-D
5 other semi-keys

NOW—I'll tell you what I'm gonna do: For just one thin check, the 25th part of a checkbook, I'm going to ship you these 5002 cents (express charges collect) for

A VERY HAPPY AND PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR TO YOU, AND YOU AND ESPECIALLY YOU!

As many of you know, several months ago we withdrew from the Mail Order Silver Dollars Business. The reasons for this were many and were obvious. To many of the very satisfied friends and customers we found that this was a disappointment.

The past few months have indeed been most interesting! But the best is yet to come! Let's call a "Spade a Spade" when the throat cutting, discount, double stamp days are "Gone with the Wind" (and this is not too far off) you will see the Silver Dollar emerge as the "thoroughbred" she really is, and the "class of the Field." Stop and really think — carefully examine and analyze every aspect of this truly great coin along with every other series in American Numismatics and I am sure that you will come up with some startling answers.

To see this distinguished lady being "kicked in the teeth", and degraded the way she is at the present time makes me sick and my "Blood Boil." I intend to do everything in my power and lend all the strength I have to presenting at all times this most important of the U. S. Coins in its true perspective. Many of the prices listed below may seem high but are actually low. Right now only one thing matters to me and that is that honest, stable prices prevail, at this present writing, this is the way I see it.

It could very well be that I still have a lot to learn about cold-blood of business facts and tactics and whether orders come in or not, "I am going to call 'em the way I see 'em." Someone once said "if you don't like the sight of blood, get out of the war." Let this message be one of the tournequets on the arm of a gallant lady who who is very much on her feet and is one of the few things left in this country outside of our personal freedom for which the rest of the world has any respect.

I have been in the Silver Dollar Business for nearly fifteen years, and I pledge to you fair grading and prompt personal attention to all of your Numismatic needs, whether it be a single coin, roll or bag.

If you order and we are out, we will conscientiously try for 24 hours to come up with what you want or your money will be returned to you, AirMail (no "setting" on your hard earned money.)

worth saving and as a result, for at least the first two months of issue, 1965 coins will have an unjustifiably large premium.

To return to the silver situation as it affects and has affected 1964, there can be no doubt that the purchase and hoarding of fifty million silver dollars has drained needed investment capital from investment numismatics as a whole. Money that was on its way into coin investment went instead into silver investment, never to return. For it is the current viewpoint that those who purchased cartwheels with an eye to a quick profit are doomed to a loss and their funds, after withdrawal from a losing investment will go elsewhere. Those who intend to hold for the long haul will not be investing in other coins for some time to come. So we can regard the release of the silver dollars as the worst thing to happen to investment numismatics in 1964.

Getting away from government influence for a moment (if that's possible) it might be wise to point out some non-governmental factors which have had a profound influence on the coin market.

Certainly the most important of these factors has been the teletype. The creation of the teletype exchange in 1963 marked the turning point of coin investing. The entire boom in 1963 was caused not by a tremendous growth of coin collectors as some would have you believe but rather by the newfound ability of the dealers to communicate with ease between one another. While in the past, they had always been able to call one another to buy coins, now, for the first time, they were constantly exposed to the wares of other dealers and tempted to purchase for quick resale.

At this point, supplied with a new and seemingly inexhaustible supply of coin bargains, the dealers realized that no longer would they be a success by merely selling hole fillers to the walk-in trade. They had to drum up business with an entirely new group of people; well heeled individuals who didn't know an overdate from an over-shoe but who were interested in investing big money to make bigger money. These new investors came into the coin market in droves. They bought in quantity but seldom sold, since many were holding for capital gains and the rest were convinced that prices must continue to go up. And since much more buying was taking place than selling, the prices did go up.

Toward the middle of 1964, the picture changed. The initial wave of investors began to reach the point at which they were ready to liquidate. Suddenly dealers were presented with more merchandise than they had customers for. Another problem arose. New investment money was not coming into numismatics fast enough to buy out those investors who wanted to sell out and get out. Whether this lack of new investment money arose from too few investors or too many funds tied up in silver dollars is unimportant. The fact remained that when Joe the investor was ready to sell, there was no purchaser.

This situation still exists but the coin market has discovered in 1957, 1961 and rediscovered in 1964 that it has a built in buffer against precipitous market drops and declines. This buffer is the simple fact that after a five per cent decline followed by the prospect of another decline, dealers simply quit buying. Simultaneously, the investors decide that they would rather hold onto their coins than take a loss. Unlike stocks, the coins get more valuable the older they get. These factors tend to dry up the available quantities of coins offered for a loss and to start the market on a recovery trend faster than might otherwise be expected.

Another factor which has certainly affected the market for 1964 has been promotions. Many major dealers band together and run this item or that to a high point and then move on to something else. As examples of this we had nickels in April along with

Please compare these prices before you buy. We believe our selling prices are lower and our buying prices higher for these scarce sets. We have sold more of these sets in our store than Proof sets. By comparing sets sold by the U. S. Mint, you will find there were fewer mint sets made than proof sets. These are in the original polyethylene packets as purchased from the U. S. Mint and are not home made sets. THEY HAVE BEEN PACKED LIKE THIS ONLY SINCE 1959. You will receive a total of ten coins, one of each coin from the Philadelphia and Denver Mint.

September. Since September nothing has been run with the possible exception of the 1964 proof set. Since a successful promotion requires an upswing market it is unlikely that we will see another one before early 1965.

While predictions of what's to come are hard to make in a field of investment as volatile as the coin market there are a certain number of considerations present which can definitely be listed at this time and their effect projected into the next year.

As most of our readers know, the two largest exchanges in the country have recently merged. They are still being run at this time as two separate entities. In February, the two will be merged into one working circuit with complete interchange between all 300 members. This will have a terrific impact on the market. Roughly 150 dealers will suddenly be exposed to another 150 dealers with whom they have had only arms length dealings in the past. Possibly the 150 estimate is high

AIR-TITE MINT SET HOLDERS

AIR-TITE Mint Set Holders are made of heavy, high quality, polished, clear vinyl plastic, 3 1/2" x 5 1/4", about the same overall size as U. S. or Canadian Proof Sets.

- SIX — Individually connected compartments in each holder.
- VERSATILE — Use to house mint sets of 2 to 6 coins; cut away pockets not needed.
- FAST — Insert and seal coins, in seconds, virtually airtight. No hot irons or special tools required for sealing.
- COST — Much less than high priced plastic holders and still giving top protection.
- COMPACT — Store two or three times as many sets, in a given area, than bulky plastics.
- APPEARANCE — Coins in these holders present a better appearance because they are clear, neat and trim.

for each circuit but you can well imagine the additional coin sales that will be transacted each day on this new exchange. And increased volume must lead to increased prices.

Second, the Treasury has backed itself into a position where now, no matter what it does about silver it will be wrong. If no action is taken, we will be out of silver in two years. If partial debasement occurs, we will still use silver at an alarming rate and old coins will be worth more, intrinsically than new coins. If debasement is complete, the vending machine lobby will probably secede from the Union and meanwhile, the price of silver no longer pegged to coins might very well be allowed to run free. No matter what the course of action, there will be some fantastic investment opportunities for the astute.

Third, for the coin investor who gets tired of listening to what his coin broker tells him and decides to strike out on his own, there is the ever widening field of foreign coins, proofs, U. S. types and rarities. This market is just getting started and with the plenitude of foreign issues forthcoming in 1965 the market can go nowhere but up.

Fourth, the gold situation bears looking into. Several weeks ago we commented on the price of gold in relation to the U.S. double eagle. This week, gold is extremely active on tape and the price has risen at least a dollar a coin. The gold coins of our country and other countries are closely tied in value to the nation's economic situation and could well become prime investment vehicles in event of devaluation of the dollar or even the threat of such devaluation.

Finally, as you all know, we are currently in a market decline. No matter what point in value and

This time honored coin is the first American $20 gold piece. This coin along with its fractional parts is the forerunner of United States coins. These very coins are the patterns which Alexander Hamilton used to design the United States decimal coinage along with the Spanish Mill Dollar. What other coin could be so historically reverent in the minds of all who collect beauty and history? What other coins can be admired as true pieces from the pages of history? Who can say these hunks of pure gold were not handled by Ephraim Brasher, George Washington, or Alexander Hamilton or any of the great Americans of the past?

These pieces sell for less than the price of a roll of 1955 halves in new condition, or for that matter, even a circulated roll. We were fortunate in obtaining a small hoard of these which have been uncovered after many years of sleeping. The superb condition of these coins can be attested to by their hiding of these years. Why not collect a real coin for beauty and historical significance?!

time the decline ends, it will have to come back. For those who watch closely, there will be a time to buy and a time to sell. The time to buy might be now; or it might be next July. Only close study of the market and careful research can tell the investor when the turning point is approaching. But at some point in the next several months a day will come that you will look back on a year from now and say, "My, I wish I had bought back into the market on that day". Your job will be to spot that day before it comes.

1964 has been a good year for numismatic investment if you used care and planning. Many investments such as proof sets and half dollars gave the investor triple or quadruple his money. There will be opportunities such as this in the future, not only on purchases direct from some government, but also in the roll market. In just the past two weeks, in the midst of a declining market, one $300 roll jumped $60 as a result of an article which you probably read. Of course spotting that article and evaluating it took knowledge. But there are other gains lying around for the taking. For instance, have you ordered your Canadian 1965 proof like sets yet? You see, if you want your 1965 investment program to be successful, it will be up to you.

desire replacement of the sets which were forwarded to you via insured parcel post and lost en route, may we ask that you endorse and return check issued by the Post Office Department in settlement of claim indicated above or, alternatively, send us a new remittance to cover the cost.

"In either event," the letter continues, "the lower portion of this letter should be completed and returned with your remittance. Any remittance for more than the cost of the lost shipment will be returned."

"In view of the fact that the number of sets available for replacement shipments is limited," it is pointed out, "a response within 10 days from the date of this letter is requested."

NEW YORK—The long-awaited, new fifth edition of "Paper Money of the United States," the standard reference work on American currency by the late Robert Friedberg, with additions and revisions by Jack Friedberg, is now available at coin shops, book stores and department store coin departments.

The book illustrates all types and sizes of U. S. paper money, including large size notes, small size notes, fractional currency and encased postage stamps, with collector's valuations.

All of the prices have been up-dated, and for the first time, valuations are given for Gold Certificates, which are now legal to collect and hold.

In addition, a major change has occurred in the numbering system for small size notes. The standard Friedberg numbers for small size notes have been completely revised and a new, simplified numbering system has been instituted for these notes.

An unusual and highly desirable feature of the new edition, sure to be a hit with collectors, is the provision that has been made for future note issues. Space and numbers have been provided for future issues so that collectors can add them to the book, in proper sequence, when they are issued. This innovation, a numismatic "first," is of considerable benefit to the collector since it will enable him to keep his book up-to-date through many note-issuing years to come.

The new fifth edition of "Paper Money of the United States," published by The Coin & Currency Institute, New York 1, N.Y., has 305 pages, is 8 1/2" x 11" in size and is cloth bound. The price remains the same as in previous editions, at $12.50.

LUXEMBOURG — Official sources in Luxembourg reveal that the largest anowable coin or note to be issued by their country is 100 Francs. The 250 Franc Millenary Commemorative was "exceptionally accorded by the occasion of the 1000th years of Luxembourg." The 250 Franc piece was made available in 20,000 pieces of which only 7,500 were Patina Finished and in plastic cases advised Modern World Coins of Philadelphia.

The Patina Finish imparts a spectral coloration similar to older coins that have a patina surface. This finish offers a certain resistance to corrosion and other surface deteriorations.

Thus the largest available coin from Luxembourg is the current (1964) 100 Franc piece and no other 250 Franc or the rumored 500 Franc piece will be issued.

OTTAWA, ONT. — The Royal Canadian mint here, originally designed to produce 100,000,000 coins a year, will produce some 600,000,000 this year.

The output is required to keep up with an unprecedented demand which left orders totalling 13,000,000 coins outstanding at the end of last December.

With the press room operating around the clock and almost all day-shift employees working 30 hours overtime a week, mint

JACKSON, MISSISSIPPI—Jackson will again play host to one of the nations largest regional coin conventions March 20 and 21, 1965 when the Mississippi Numismatic Association Convention is staged at the Heidelberg Hotel in downtown Jackson. More than 70 Dealers will occupy Bourse Booths in the 10,000 sq. ft. Olympic Room. Exhibits will be housed in the adjoining 6,500 sq. ft. Victory Room. According to Daniel T. Anderson, director of publicity, more than 5,000 collectors and dealers jammed the halls last spring.

Byron W. Cook, prominent professional Numismatist is again general chairman. Kyle Herring has been named bourse chairman and Jerry Langford, exhibits chairman.

All correspondence should be addressed to Byron W. Cook at P. O. Box 181, Jackson, Mississippi or to Anderson c/o the MISSISSIPPI NUMISMATIC EXCHANGE, Box 263, Jackson, Mississippi.

EAST ORANGE, N. J.—Frank G. Spadone, a coin dealer here, turned down $12,000 in cash yesterday for a copper penny.

Instead, Mr. Spadone accepted $15,000 worth of rare coins in exchange for the penny, a 1943 coin for which he had paid $500. The trade was made with Walter Ferrias, a Bristol, Tenn., businessman who wanted the penny to complete a collection.

The 1943 copper coin is valued highly by collectors because it is believed that only 8 to 12 copper pennies were minted that year, when the Government's regular pennies were made of zinc.

The coins received by Mr. Spadone in the exchange included uncirculated Indian and Lincoln pennies and 3-cent pieces.

ENCINO, CAL.—Daylight burglars ransacked the home of an Encino coin and stamp collector Tuesday, stealing an estimated $100,000 in rare coins and a $70,000 stamp collection.

The thieves broke into the home of Theodore Ulmer a missile engineer, at 15708 Woodvale Road, Encino, through a rear win-

CANADA SILVER DOLLARS

Still remain the King of Canadian coinage and with the exception of a few dates, prices continue to rise due to the ever increasing demands of the collector and the fact that there just are not enough to go around. There are no huge hoards available and certainly no group has enough of any one date (last two excepted) to materially effect the market.

This definitely places the Canadian silver dollar in the NON-SPECULATIVE class and in one of sound Numismatic Value.

Space City Averages:

How They Are Obtained

With close to 1,500 separate statistics appearing each week in PACE, a need exists to express this information in graphic form for busy readers.

We are currently charting eight different coin series each week as you see below. These charts are based on Space City Averages, an arbitrarily chosen group of rolls which we feel are representative of the total for that series.

To be included in the Space City Averages rolls are chosen on the basis of three factors: (1) their trading is constant, (2) they are widely held, and (3) they are indicative of the series.

It is obvious infrequently traded items, closely held items, and extremes in the series would not serve this purpose.

Each week the statistical staff of PACE prepares these averages from the information obtained on The American Numismatics Exchange transactions.

The amount expressed in the Space City averages is the total market bid prices for the rolls included in the averages. This is a dollar figure and is compared with previous week, month, and year figures for analysis.

The high and low for 1964 is also shown.

MARKET SUMMARY

December 23, 1964

By Russell Brown

EXTREMELY low volume was the keynote of a market this week that appeared to be solidifying its prices in readiness for possible future upward moves. Compared to recent weeks, the lower denominations were enjoying prosperity with a majority of advances, however the major issues still exhibited some signs of weakness.

Lincoln cents continued to be as active as they have been during the past several weeks. The 1960-P small date roll climbed another $25 in heavy trading. One bag traded at $37,000. Seven other issues advanced, among them the 1934-D with a gain of twenty dollars.

Jefferson nickels were quietly mixed with the key 1950-D and 1955-P each scoring gains on fair demand. Several of the war issues continued to lose ground. It appears that the runaway declines on the Jeffs are now complete and a period of levelling has set in.

The dime series had its best week of the past month. With ten advances and only two declines, demand was spread among the issues of the forties and sixties. The two losses were both of a minor nature while the gains ran as high as five dollars a roll.

Quarters duplicated Jefferson nickels in performance with three advances and four declines. No material price movements were noted. The quarters have been very quiet during the recent declines and seem intent on remaining unaffected by the unfavorable market.

Franklin half dollars continued their losing ways with major losses scored by the 1950-P, 1955-P and 1948-D issues. Only a gain by the 1963-P of fifty cents could be listed on the bright side of the ledger.

Morgan dollars are having a trying time finding purchasers. Each week, numerous offers to sell at the preceding week's "bid" prices are made to no avail. And so we pull down the ask and, of course, the bid. The following week the same routine is repeated. This is particularly true of many of the rolls selling in the sub $100 range. This week we saw eight issues lose from five to twenty dollars per roll. Declines outnumbered advances 14 to three, and gains were only one or two dollars per issue.

Peace dollars saw a downward correction by five dates, each in the neighborhood of ten dollars. Only the Philadelphia rolls were affected. Very low volume was noted for the series.

Few bids have been in evidence for proofs lately with the possible exception of the 1964 sets. These continue to stay above the $11 level. Other dates vary from day to day but the general trend is toward slightly lowering prices. While demand for any of the earlier sets would push the prices up rapidly, that demand is not now present in the market.

Major corrections downward in circulated nickels were apparent toward the end of the week as several holdings were offered for sale. Few of the key and semi key issues were not affected by the price cuts.

Canadian proof like sets and dollars of 1964 were once again being requested in quantity and as a result, prices rose on the two issues. The rest of the Canadian proof like issues are not being traded with any regularity at the present time.

The Market Opinion

This will be our last issue of 1964. This has been a wild and wooly year for investment numismatics. A full review of the year is presented on pages one and three of this issue. We hope that the market of 1965 will be a more orderly one now that most of the price inequities have been ironed out. One thing which we feel completely safe in saying: Merry Christmas to all of you and we will see you next year.

have been sold (indicated by the "bid") or bought (indicated by the "asked") at the time of compilation. Price changes are obtained by comparison of weekly bid prices.

* Prices are wholesale quotations compiled from the American Numismatic Exchange teletype system which serves 195 coin dealers across the country.

They went from room to room in the large house, throwing drawers to the floor and turning boxes upside down. In one room they forced open a wall safe that contained the coins and the 24-volume stamp collection.

Police said they also took an undetermined amount of jewelry and some personal business records.

HOUSTON, TEXAS. —

The theft of a coin collection and currency valued at $93,700 from a southwest Houston apartment in October was cleared by police Friday when they recovered a part of the collection from a used car dealer.

A woman, who identified herself as Mattie Carol Gaylord, 19, was charged with burglary and felony theft. She was also charged with auto theft in the same court and her bond on the three charges was set at $3,000.

Police are looking for Richard Wiggins, 26, whom Miss Gaylord implicated in the theft of the coins and currency. Wiggins, who was released from the penitentiary at Huntsville last June 30, was charged in court with burglary and felony theft.

William Grover Bell, 45, a coin dealer, identified the recovered coins as being his, but was unable to say immediately if the entire collection was there.

Bell estimated the returned coins to have a face value of $2,000, but worth about $20,000 in the numismatic (coin collection) market.

Bell reported two footlockers, containing the collection, $31,800 of currency he planned to use to buy an airplane and some gold certificates, stolen from his apartment on Oct. 19.

He has since moved to a new address.

Bell told police then he had left town Oct. 10 and had just returned to find his apartment broken into and the footlockers missing. The police had found one of the footlockers, empty but for some clothes, alongside a freeway Oct. 13 but didn't know to whom it belonged.

In a written statement to police, Miss Gaylord said she was told by Wiggins that a friend of his had asked him to burglarize a second-floor apartment and get two footlockers from its bedroom.

She said she helped Wiggins in the burglary but that neither of them knew the contents of the footlockers. She said one of the lockers was light in weight but that the other was too heavy for her and Wiggins to lift.

They dragged this locker down the stairs and managed to get it inside the trunk of their car, she said.

She said they drove about 10 to 15 blocks where they met a man driving a white Cadillac. She said the man, whom she didn't know, took the lightweight footlocker and put it inside his car and that he and Wiggins lifted the heavier footlocker from Wiggins' car into the Cadillac's trunk. She said the man drove away.

Wiggins told her later he'd received $400 and the used car used in the burglary, she said.

"Man, if I'd known what was in these things, its for sure you would never have got me in Houston," Miss Gaylord told the Post as she surveyed the collection spread out on a table at police headquarters.

Detectives said the car dealer from whom the coins were recovered told them he bought the coins from a man for $400 and a used 1960 model convertible. He said he knew nothing of any currency, the officers said.

WASHINGTON—Robert V. Roosa, Under-Secretary of the Treasury for Monetary Affairs will become a partner in the investment firm and private bank of Brown Brothers, Harriman & Co. on January 1, 1965.

Mr. Roosa who has been with the Treasury for almost four years, was formerly a research vice president with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

It cannot be estimated now what impact Mr. Roosa's resignation will have on the silver and coin metallic situation which faces a showdown in Congress sometime after February of next year. In recent years, the policies of the Treasury have most closely been associated with the views of the Silver Users Association. It is, however, doubtful whether the Treasury will be in accord completely with the suggestion of the users to get out of silver entirely; the Silver Users Assn. advocates coins with no silver content. The Treasury has traditionally been opposed to radical changes involving silver, coins and new techniques.
